A semen analysis is a test to check your semen and sperm. You are collecting a semen sample for a:

- ☐ Post-vasectomy screen to make sure there are no sperm in your semen after your vasectomy.

- After your vasectomy, you need to ejaculate at least 20 times to clear out the semen. After you do this, collect a sample like your doctor told you.
- Use the clean container that the lab or doctor's office gave you.

- ☐ Complete semen analysis to measure the number and quality of your sperm and the amount of liquid (semen) produced with your sperm.

- Do not masturbate or have sex for 2 to 7 days before this test.
- Use the Seminal Fluid Collection Kit that the lab or doctor's office gave you.

*If you had a complete semen analysis, fill in the information below and hand it in with your semen sample:

1. How many days did you not masturbate or have sex before collecting the sample? _____

2. How was the sample collected?

- ☐ Masturbation
☐ Sex (Intercourse)

3. What time was the sample collected? _____

4. Did any of the sample spill?

- ☐ No
☐ Yes

- If it spilled, when did this happen? _____

5. Did you keep the sample at body temperature before taking it to the lab?

- ☐ No
☐ Yes

How do I collect my semen sample?

You can either masturbate or have sex (intercourse) to collect the semen sample.

- Masturbate: Ejaculate directly into the specimen container. You must collect all of it without spilling.
- Sex: Use the special condom that was in the Seminal Fluid Collection Kit. Other types of condoms will not work. Do not use any birth control solutions, lubricants (lube), or saliva. Collect all of it without spilling.

What do I do after I collect my semen sample?

- You must keep the sample close to body temperature. A good way to do this is by keeping the semen container inside a pocket or close to your body. Do not get the semen too hot or cold.
- Label the container with:
 - Your name
 - Date of birth
 - Date of collection
 - Time of collection
- Label your container with “Incomplete Specimen” if you spilled any semen during collection.

When do I need to take my semen sample to the lab?
